

Kiev Zhulyany Airport Reviews

Kyiv International Airport (Zhuliany) (Ukrainian: Міжнародний аеропорт “Київ” (Жуляни)) (IATA: IEV, ICAO: UKKK) is one of the two passenger airports of the Ukrainian capital Kiev. It is owned by the municipality of Kiev and located in the southern Zhuliany neighbourhood of the city.

In 2003, the Ukraine State Aviation Museum was created in one of the industrial estates neighboring the airport. It is the largest aviation museum in Ukraine, exhibiting some unique Soviet examples including original prototypes for famous airliners. Ukrainian Air Force maintains a small training facility in the vicinity of the Zhuliany airport.

As of July 2013, Moscow, Treviso and Dortmund were the most popular international destinations in the Kiev Zhulyany Airport, with Simferopol, Donetsk and Odessa leading among domestic destinations.

Aside from facilitating regular passenger flights, Kyiv International Airport is also the main business aviation airport in Ukraine, and one of the busiest business aviation hubs in Europe.
